

Wildwood Days is Coming August 11 to 13

Wildwood Days, the Rio Dell celebration each August, will be compressed into three days from the traditional five this year, promising a full schedule of doings.

Kids' night will be Friday, Aug. 11, and the planners are seeking vendors who want a free booth to sell kid-oriented items from 5 to 7 p.m. During this time the penny scramble, fire truck rides, and soap box derby rides will be going on. Email: riodellwildwooddays@gmail.com if you are interested in being a vendor. If you are planning to sell a food item, you'll need a food permit from the county health department.

Looking for a project to get the family together, keep the kids busy now that school is out, or a free way to promote your business or organization? Consider entering the Wildwood Days parade, which starts Saturday, Aug. 12 at noon. It's free, and there are prizes sponsored by the Coast Central Credit Union for those who choose to enter any of three categories of competition. The June newsletter from the City of Rio Dell carried a copy of the application and information sheet, which can also be downloaded from the website riodellscotiachamber.org, under the button on the lower right that says Join the parade!

The theme It's All About the Children honors Ernie Cannady, who died in March and was active coaching youth sports as well as working at the Rio Dell elementary school, among his many contributions to the community. Watch for more on the complete line-up of activities in the August newsletter, get more information at wildwooddays.org, or check out Wildwood Days on Facebook.

Scotia True Value Hardware to Close

A 20-year tradition in Scotia will end in July when the True Value Hardware store closes. Linda David will manage the final month of the store's operation, with the help of an inventory liquidation firm. Her husband, Paul David, is one of three brothers who ran the business along with an industrial, business-to-business hardware company. One brother died last fall, and Paul and Linda David want to retire to Kentucky, where a daughter lives.

"We want to thank the community and the area for 20 wonderful years," Linda David said. A native of Southern Humboldt, her memories of Scotia extend to her childhood in the 1950s. "My family would come to Scotia for groceries and banking," she said. The community of Bull Creek, where she grew up, bused people in to use the Scotia pool. "We played on the train. There's been a lot of change and also some things that have stayed the same," like the family-focused flavor of the community, she notes.

The hardware business was very successful, she says, and grew over time, adjusting to changes in the economy. "We're not going out of business, we're closing because we want to retire," she says, praising the employees who have staffed the store over the years. Continued on Page 4.

Scotia Forges Ahead in Transition

Scotia marked the completion of the first home purchase in mid-June, when Dale Mensing, whose father was born half a block away in the old Scotia Hospital, took over the keys, along with wife Karen. "It's great to come back home," Dale Mensing said, noting his family has lived in Humboldt County since at least 1900. All 270 houses will be sold in phases over the next four to five years, according to current plans.

Member Profile: Coast Central Credit Union Strong and Helping the Community

Manager Cindy Hicks at the Fortuna branch of the Coast Central Credit Union has no trouble listing the benefits her employer offers to the area. “We’re a cooperative, so the members are the owners,” she says, noting this “fundamental difference” means lower interest rates when borrowing money, and higher interest rates when investing, since profits aren’t channeled to shareholders. Other advantages include the organization’s size and strength. “We have 13 branches and a billion dollars,” she notes. “We’re five-star rated, that’s as high as you can go,” she says of the Bauer Financial Service system that rates banks and credit unions throughout the U.S., which people can check online for free at bauerfinancial.com.

“We’re locally managed,” Hicks continued, pointing out that decisions are made by a local board. And, the credit union funnels about $200,000 a year into the community, helping out with non-profit organizations and fundraisers. “We give to about 80 percent of the activities in Humboldt County” she says, as well as supporting activities in Del Norte and Trinity counties. She indicates her office, which is filled with gift baskets she has assembled to benefit various upcoming silent auctions and other activities. Finally, there’s the quality of service that Hicks believes sets the credit union apart. “We go above and beyond,” she says, taking the extra moment to build a one-on-one relationship. “It’s like family here,” one teller laughed, noting how the branch was decorated to mark Hick’s 60th birthday recently. “This is why I worked here half of my career,” Hicks says of her 40 years in banking, 20 of them in management with the credit union – it’s the personal relationships among the employees and customers.

All this, she thinks, adds up to the high level of satisfaction customers report in relationship surveys and Peoples’ Choice awards offered through the Times-Standard and North Coast Journal newspapers.

In her 11 years as manager at the Fortuna branch, Hicks has served on a number of boards. A major passion is helping high school youth and college students. She works with the schools and other organizations such as Decade of Difference to give young people practice in mock job interviews, advice on how to present themselves, and tips on social media behavior and what the work world seeks and expects in employees. “They will be taking over one day,” she says of her mentoring work and the good sense it makes to ensure young people get a solid start.

Scotia Hardware Continued from Page 1:

The building formerly housed a Coast to Coast hardware store, which burned in the 1992 fire that destroyed the Scotia shopping center following an earthquake. After standing empty, it opened as a True Value with the David brothers as owners. Becky Nicholson, the longest-serving of the store's six employees, began in 2000 working in accounting. "The position of manager just sort of evolved," she said of her most recent title, as she tackled the various jobs including ordering and checking in new stock.

Nicholson sold her Rio Dell home in preparation for a move to Washington State where her husband had taken a job, in a timeframe that coincided with the closure of the store. The Town of Scotia owns the hardware store property and has been trying to secure a buyer.

Meanwhile, the Community Services District board of directors is busily assuming responsibility for the water and wastewater services, parks and recreation facilities, historic structures and other properties it formally took over from the Town of Scotia corporation in May. The five-member board meets at 5:30 p.m. on the third Thursday of each month, as well as at specially-called meetings when required. The board includes president Rick Walsh, vice president Gayle McKnight, and directors Diane Bristol, Paul Newmaker and Susan Pryor.

Handling the day-to-day work of running the community are general manager Steve Tyler and assistant general manager Leslie Marshall, both contract employees hired by Planwest Partners, Inc., an Arcata-based consulting firm offering services to governmental entities. Attorney Tracy Boobar with the Law Offices of Nancy Diamond, also in Arcata, provides legal counsel. Tyler and Marshall staff the office, which is also where board meetings are held, at 122 Main Street (in the suite of facilities that includes the post office and Massage of the Redwoods), from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. A website, <http://scotiacsd.com/>, provides information.

There is much to do. The board is considering replacing the water and wastewater treatment plants with new package plants, according to a news release, noting they would be more efficient, easier to maintain, and provide safe, clean water. While current utility fees are sufficient to pay for these upgrades, the board is seeking grants and low-interest loans to offset the costs. The museum and Winema Theater both require new roofs and other exterior upgrades, and there is the need to meet accessibility requirements for restrooms to comply with the Americans with Disabilities act.

A recent meeting saw directors addressing the potential injuries that could come from people climbing on the lumbering equipment on display in the park area adjacent to the museum. While noting that local families and visitors of all ages come to the park to climb on the equipment and take photos, directors voiced concern for the dangers of people falling, getting cut on sharp edges, and being exposed to potentially harmful substances in the paint and materials.

Fencing will be erected and warning signs posted as an initial measure while the board examines possible ways to address the issue more permanently, which range from refurbishing of the displays, estimated to cost hundreds of thousands of dollars, to the possible sale of these items. A delegation from the Mill Valley Historical Society was in attendance, noting their continued interest in purchasing the locomotive because it served in a lumbering operation on Mt. Tamilpais before being moved to Scotia, but agreeing that there are substantial costs either party would need to invest in the care of the machinery.
